Collection Description

Historical and Biographical Information

"The St. Agathe Historical Society is dedicated to the preservation of local history. They discover and collect material and make local historical information and materials accessible to those interested in their own historical origin. The Preservation Center houses the society's extensive collections of religious, educational, farming, and local artifacts used by the early inhabitants of Saint Agatha. The early inhabitants of the town were of French-Canadian, and Acadian roots. The historical society has a large genealogical collection pertaining to local families."[1]

The Ste-Agathe historical house is an original home housed on the land it currently sits on, dating to circa 1854 (according to the Fort Kent Registry of Deeds). The left side is original to the structure though the right side of the house was built at a later date that isn't known. The property has passed through different hands throughout its history before being sold to the newly established Ste-Agathe historical society in 1978.[2]

In addition to the historical house, the society owns four other buildings on the property that preserve the history of their town, including the Daughters of Wisdom convent and boarding school.

Scope and Content

This collection consists of photographs, cards, newspaper clippings, obituary cards, funeral/memorial service pamphlets, homilies, newsletter publications, and typed letters. The materials share the history of the Daughters of Wisdom, a religious order of nuns sent from France to North America. A group of these nuns were sent to St, Agatha, Maine to teach, run the hospital, and serve the community. Their convent and boarding school was eventually closed and reopened as a public school renamed Wisdom school. The Daughters of Wisdom were an integral part of the community throughout their years of service.

Throughout the collection, DW or D.W. is used as an abbreviation for the Daughters of Wisdom and will be used interchangeably in this finding aid depending on what was used in the original description of the items.

Arrangement

This collection was brought to the Archives in six three-ring binders that the materials were kept in. The staff working on this collection kept the materials in the original order they were brought in. The first four binders were labeled binders 1-4 while the latter two were labeled 'Sr. Catherine Nadeau' and 'Sr. Annette Picard' respectively. These names were kept and used to divide the materials accordingly.

All items were scanned as TIFF and JPEG images. Because there are two copies of each digital image, they are labeled in the Archives database as 529.1a, 524.1b, etc. Each TIFF and JPEG copy of the images were kept together with the TIFF scanned first- and therefore presented first on this finding aid-followed by the JPEG copy. Some of the materials had descriptions that were put in the excel sheet and used as descriptions when creating this finding aid; for those with limited information/vague details, the processing archivist added descriptions to this finding aid.
