Introduction: These microfilms are a part of a series of photographs produced by various photographers for the Farm Security Administration and the U.S. Office of War Information in the 1930s and 1940s. The Acadian Archives/Archives acadiennes purchases these particular rolls because they include photographs of Aroostook County, Maine.

Scope and Content Note: These microfilms may contain photographs by a variety of F.S.A. and O.W.I. photographers from the late 1930s and early 1940s, organized by lot number. Lots 118, 756, 757, 760, 1216, 1217, 1218, and 1219 contain 603 photographs of Aroostook County, Maine taken by Jack Delano and John Collier, Jr. in October, 1940. Delano took photographs of spring planting in the St. John Valley, and wartime Memorial Day ceremonies in Ashland, Maine.

The majority of the Collier Jr. and Delano photographs document farming practices and farm life in the Aroostook County, notably among F.S.A. client farmers and potato growers in the St. John Valley. They also document the State Experimental Farm in Presque Isle, the first international potato barrel rolling contest, wartime Memorial Day ceremonies, a Congregational church service, and scenes along U.S. Route 1.

In addition to the microfilms, this collection includes a photocopy edition of Jack Delano's field notes and research materials relating to lot 1216.

Aroostook County, Maine Photograph Lots: Summary Description: The 1940, 1942-3 Aroostook County photography of Collier, Jr. and Delano comprise lots 118, 756, 757, 760, 1216, 1217, 1218, and 1219. The following list summarizes the subject matter for those lots, according to caption information on the microfilms:

Lot 80 (12photos): The annual agricultural show at the State Experimental Farm in Presque Isle.

Lot 88 (12photos): Cunningham farm belonging to FSA client in Caribou

Lot 118 (157photos): Towns and farmlands, FSA farmers, their families, and their farms in the Upper St. John Valley.

Lot 756 (39photos): wartime Memorial ceremonies in Ashland

Lot 757 (42 photos): spring potato planting on the Fort Kent farm of Leonard Gagnon.

Lot 760 (22photos): a Congregational church meeting in Buffalo Hill

Lot 1216 (159photos): potato growing in Aroostook County.

Lot 1217 (72photos): the Woodsman Potato Company in Caribou.

Lot 1218 (38photos): the first international potato barrel rolling contest in Presque Isle.

Lot 1219 (50photos): scenes along U.S. Route 1.

Biographical Note: John Collier, Jr. worked as a photographer for the Farm Security Administration in 1941-42 throughout the United States. He subsequently worked as a freelance photographer and taught at Stanford, the University of California at Berkeley, and San Francisco State University. He is the author of Visual Anthropology: Photography as a research Method. His photos are in the Museum of Modern Art and other collections.

Jack Delano worked for the Farm Security Administration in the years 1940-43, travelling on assignment throughout the U.S. and Puerto Rico. He subsequently settled in Puerto Rico, where he has had a varied career as a documentary photographer, radio and television and in important photography collections.

Related Archival Collections and Publications:

The Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division has 13 color slides of Aroostook County, Maine taken by Jack Delano (lot 11671-4; LC-USF35-55 through 67). (The Acadian Archives has computer print-outs of six of these slides in the administrative file for this collection). The Library of Congress also has a large collection of written records of the F.S.A.-O.W.I. photogenic unit. However, supplementary records for Delano and Collier, Jr. exist for lot 1216 only.

The University of Louisville Photographic Archives has the personal papers of the F.S.A.-O.W.I. photographic supervisor Roy E. Stryker, which include his correspondence with Delano, Collier, Jr. and other field photographer, in addition to shooting scripts, outlines, memoranda, photographs, and related pamphlets, articles and books published during and after the project. Stryker was F.S.A. supervisor to Collier, Jr. and Delano when they were photographing Aroostook County.

The National Archives and record Administration in Waltham, Massachusetts office has files for the F.S.A and the Production Credit Administration (Record Group 96), including individual files on client families in the St. John Valley. There may also be additional F.S.A. records about the St. John Valley families at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., including office files, caption lists, supplementary reference files, and scrapbooks.

The Archives of American Art, Washington, D.C., has a collection of 1963-1965 interviews by Richard K. Doud with F.S.A.-O.W.I office staff, government officials, and photographers, including Jack Delano. A 62-page transcription is available for on-site consultation or on microfilm. The one-reel microfilm may be borrowed via inter-library loan (reference number NDA21).

Historian C. Stewart Doty's book Acadian Hard Times: The Farm Security Administration in Maine's St. John Valley, 1940-1943 (Orono: University of Maine Press, 1991) examines the role of the F.S.A. in the St. John Valley. The book includes several hundred F.S.A.-O.W.I. photographs of the St. John Valley by Delano and Collier, Jr., as well as modern-day photographs of people and places documented by the F.S.A.-O.W.I. in the 1940s. In addition, Doty identifies many of the individuals appearing in the Collier, Jr. and Delano photographs.

For more detailed information about F.S.A records at the Library of Congress and other archival repositories, see Annette Melville, Farm Security Administration, Historical Section: A Guide to Textual Records in the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C.: Library of Congress. 1985.

Using the Inventories The photographs in this collection are organized by lot. To help you find your way, we have created two inventories: an item-level inventory which identifies each of the photographs in the Aroostook County, Maine lots (pp. 8-42); and a lot-level inventory of all the photographic lots on the five microfilms (pp.43-51). Caption information in both inventories has been transcribed verbatim for the microfilm and includes a variety of spelling and grammar anomalies.

Using the Indexes At the end of the inventories, you will find indexes of geographical locations and photographers for all photographs in this collection. Because Collier, Jr. and Delano provided very few names for those people appearing in their photographs, we did not create a name index. For information on names, we suggest you consult C. Stewart Dot's book Acadian Hard Times (Orono: University of Maine Press, 1991). Doty did follow-up research to identify individuals in the Collier, Jr. and Delano photographs and includes this information in his book.
