

Welcome to the Blake Library website.

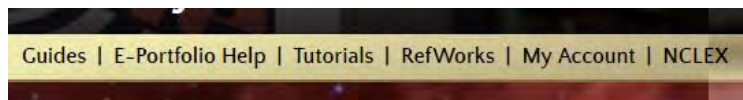

This tutorial will provide a brief overview of the flash screen and main page of the site.

OneSearch is the first step to finding research materials throughout all the library's resources.

You can find books, articles, videos, and more using OneSearch.

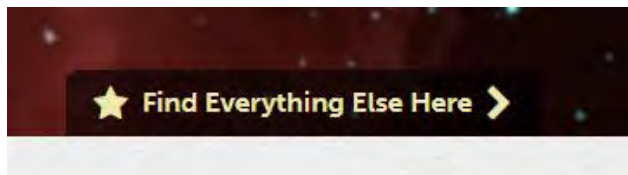

Across the top, and on every page, you will find links to commonly used tools within the site.

For example, there is the Guides link that provides information in one location for specific subjects and topics or the "My Account" page that provides

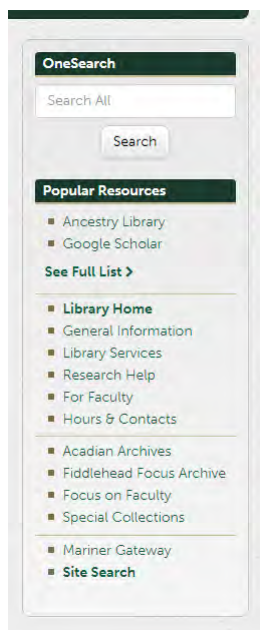

You will also find the current hours for the day and if we are open or closed shown by either a green or red circle.

You can contact us through chat, phone or get email addresses and direct numbers through the staff and hours link.

To "Find Everything Else" click on the link below.

On the main page of the site, you will find announcements as well as find additional tools and services for your research needs.

You will also find a sidebar to the right that is available on all pages.

You can use the OneSearch from here or see all the popular resources such as a specific database if you would rather use these instead of OneSearch.

You will find links that go directly to our online catalog or to other useful pages on our site.

There is so much available to you that you might want to explore.

Remember to always ask library staff for help at any time.
